

LF Ruffer Total Return Fund

Positive absolute returns with low volatility

During January, the fund price rose by 0.9%. This compared with a fall of 0.3% in the FTSE All-Share Index and a fall of 3.9% in the FTSE Govt All Stocks Index (all figures total returns in sterling).

Investors returned from the holiday period to face the prospect of much tighter financial conditions led by the US Federal Reserve. There are signs that higher inflation is embedding itself across the US economy, notably the labour market, and will not necessarily ease once supply chain disruptions abate. With interest rates close to zero and consumer price inflation at 7%, US policymakers are reacting to the realisation that conditions have been too accommodative for too long. Current expectations see four rate hikes in 2022, up from two at the turn of the year. Investors are forced to adapt to a world where the Fed now shows greater willingness to withstand financial market volatility in combatting inflation. The anticipation of rising rates provided a difficult backdrop for our inflation-linked bonds during the month, but this headwind was offset by the positive contribution from interest rate options. These options remain a key portfolio component and allow us to manage the fund's interest rate sensitivity in what we expect will be a volatile period for bond markets. The fund's duration remained close to zero as we ended the month.

Global equities offered little respite for investors, recording their worst monthly return (-4.5%) since March 2020. The declines were even greater for the technology focused Nasdaq composite (-9.0%), confirming our fears that the faster growing and more speculative parts of the equity market would be most acutely impacted by a rising cost of capital. Growing geopolitical tensions emanating from Russia and Ukraine did little to improve risk appetite. On a historical basis, inflation above 3% sees the correlation between bonds and equities turn positive and January provided a brief taste of the challenges conventional portfolios will encounter as monetary conditions tighten.

We are pleased to have delivered a positive return over the month when index level returns for both bonds and equities were negative. Despite the challenging backdrop, there were pockets of resilience as more cyclically exposed equities, which had been out of favour for much of the last decade, returned to prominence. Our equities, which are heavily tilted to this part of the market, contributed a positive return over the month. The most significant drivers of performance were the energy majors, which continued to rally as oil prices reached a seven year high. Demand remains strong and supply constrained, supporting our continued exposure across the energy sector. Elsewhere, bank stocks benefited from the rise in yields, supporting their position as an offset to the inflation-linked bonds. We resisted the urge to add meaningfully to equities during the recent weakness and instead maintain the current exposure at just below 40%.

The Federal Reserve may be the first mover, but the current inflationary pressures are not confined to the US. Other central banks will face pressures to join them in attempting to remove the stimulus punchbowl. The coming interest rate cycle is unlikely to be as well choreographed or as smooth as the last, resulting in continued uncertainty and a testing time for financial assets. We believe we have the right toolkit to survive and perhaps thrive in this environment.

Ruffer performance is shown after deduction of all fees and management charges, and on the basis of income being reinvested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of the shares and the income from them can go down as well as up and you may not get back the full amount originally invested. The value of overseas investments will be influenced by the rate of exchange.

Investment objective

The fund aims to achieve low volatility, positive returns from an actively managed portfolio of different asset classes, including equities, bonds and currencies. Capital invested is at risk and there is no guarantee that a positive return will be delivered over any one or a number of twelve-month periods. The fund may also invest in collective investment schemes, cash, money market instruments, other transferable securities and derivatives and forward transactions. Pervading this objective is a fundamental philosophy of capital preservation.
